CONTENTS

About the author xi
Foreword xiii
Preface xvii
Acknowledgements xxv

Introduction 1

PART ONE Strategic management of people, organization and relationships 7

01 Locating the value in people management 9

Introduction 9
The business strategy map 9
The organization value chain 15
Summary and additional comments 27
References 28

02 Adding and creating more value 30

Introduction 30
The value triangle 31
Organizational capabilities 36
A note on terminology 43
The consequences of a creating-value perspective 47
Summary and additional comments 50
References 50

03 Linking activities with human and organizational outcomes 52

Introduction 52
Activities for creating human capital 52

Activities for creating organization capital 64
Summary and additional comments 69
References 69

04 Competing and cooperating through social relationships 72

Introduction 72
The social brain 72
The three types of social network 82
The social world 88
The importance of social capital 89
Summary and additional comments 94
References 95

05 Developing social capital in your business 98

Introduction 98
Developing the objectives for social change 98
Choosing the right social activities 105
A new definition for organization development 109
Understanding relationship complexity 111
Navigating complexity 112
Summary and additional comments 115
Summary of Part 1 116
References 118

PART TWO Creating a social architecture 121

06 Organizing people to do work 123

Introduction 123
The organization prioritization model 125
The core elements of an organization 127
Infrastructure 128
Work 134
People 141
Connections 142

Organizational enablers 143
Other enablers 144
Summary and additional comments 145
References 145

07 Selecting an organization structure – traditional opportunities 147

Introduction 147
Simple/functional organizations 148
Divisional organizations 150
Horizontal/process-based organizations 151
Project-based organizations 154
Service-based organizations 158
Matrices 158
Summary and additional comments 162
References 163

08 Selecting an organization structure – new opportunities 165

Introduction 165
Communities 165
Networks 172
Virtual, market and platform-based networks 176
Melds 179
Formal and informal organization 184
Prioritizing the organization structure 185
Summary and additional comments 186
References 188

09 Enabling the organization 191

Introduction 191
HR enablers 191
Roles and jobs 192
Reporting arrangements 194
Grades 202
Careers 203

Groups and links 204
Organization forms and maverick organizations 210
Summary and additional comments 214
References 215

10 Designing the workplace 217

Introduction 217
New places for working 218
Changes inside offices 219
Repurposing the workplace 221
Designing for complexity 228
Summary and additional comments 229
Summary of Part 2 230
References 235

PART THREE Tending an organizational society 239

11 Recruiting, managing and developing people 241

Introduction 241
Recruitment 244
Onboarding 247
Performance management 248
Recognition 250
Reward 251
Learning and development 255
Career and alumni management 257
Talent management 258
Summary and additional comments 258
References 259

12 Facilitating dyads, triads, groups and organization effectiveness 263

Introduction 263
Developing trust 264

Developing individuals 270
Developing pairs (dyads) 270
Developing triads 270
Developing groups 271
Developing intergroup/cross-boundary relationships 273
Developing a whole organization 274
Summary and additional comments 277
References 277

13 Using social technologies and analytics 280

Introduction 280
Digital HR and people management 283
Digital technologies for the organizational society 285
Social data-based analytics 288
Social network analysis (SNA) 296
Calculating return on connections, relationships and conversations 300
Summary and additional comments 301
Summary of Part 3 302
References 303

Index 305